

48th national annual meeting of the German Society of Occupational and Environmental Medicine in combination with the mid-term meeting of the International Commission on Occupational Health

12–15 March 2008, Hamburg (Germany)

The 48th National Annual Meeting of the German Society of Occupational and Environmental Medicine in combination with the mid-term meeting of the International Commission on Occupational Health (ICOH) will take place on 12–15 March 2008 in Hamburg, Germany. For the first time European scientists, scientific societies, and institutes engaged in occupational medicine will have a joint congress. Three main topics will be discussed, that is, ethical questions on occupational medicine, occupational skin diseases, and maritime medicine—a complex challenge of occupational medicine.

Please see the conference website (www.dgaum.de) for additional information or contact the organization of the scientific program:
