

Age management: working after 60?

20–24 March 2006, Saariselkä (Finland)

The fourth international course on age management is being organized by the Nordic Institute for Advanced Training in Occupational Health (NIVA), and it will be held on 20–24 March 2006 in Saariselkä, Finland.

The course's title is "Working after 60?," and the aim is to explore solutions and analyze and collect experiences for a longer and better worklife after the age of 60 years. The course will introduce state-of-the-art research results and practices in interactive workshops.

The course is meant for occupational health and safety experts, trainers, human resource managers, and policy makers in the field of worklife and retirement issues.

Please direct additional questions to the course secretary of the Nordic Institute for Advanced Training:

Pirjo Turtiainen

NIVA

Topeliuksenkatu 41 a A

FI-00250 Helsinki, Finland

[telephone: +358 30 474 2349; telefax: +358 30 474 2497;

e-mail: pirjo.turtiainen@ttl.fi]

A new publication and sister journal for the Scandinavian Journal of Work, Environment & Health

SJWEH Supplements

SJWEH Supplements is published by the Scandinavian Journal of Work Environment & Health and appeared for the first time in 2005.

Its issues are compiled by the national institutes of occupational health in the Nordic countries and will contain documentation from conferences of importance with respect to worklife.

All subscribers of the Scandinavian Journal of Work Environment & Health receive the issues of this new journal free of charge.